Development Plan Scheme 2010/2011

March 2010

Purpose

This development plan scheme sets out our programme for preparing and reviewing our strategic development plan. We have written it to promote openness and help people get involved as we prepare the plan. It is also written to make sure we meet people's expectations.

Background

We, the Aberdeen City and Shire Strategic Development Planning Authority, were set up on 25 June 2008 as part of the Scottish Government's reform of the planning system. We are one of four strategic development planning authorities in Scotland, responsible for preparing and reviewing a strategic development plan in their area.

The strategic development plan area is the area for which we will prepare our plan (see figure 1). This is made up of the administrative areas of Aberdeen City and Aberdeenshire councils, but does not include the part of Aberdeenshire in the Cairngorms National Park.

The development plan system in Scotland

The development plan system in Scotland is made up of three main documents.

The National Planning Framework for Scotland.

This is produced by the Scottish Government and sets out their strategy for the development of different areas of Scotland, including national developments and priorities.

Strategic development plans. These will be prepared by the new strategic development planning authorities and will set out a long-term (20 years or more) development strategy showing where future development will be and what is needed to deliver it. Scottish Ministers will approve these plans.

Local development plans. These will be prepared by local authorities and will set out more detailed policies and proposals to identify land for development. The plans, which local authorities put into practice, must be consistent with the approved strategic development plan.

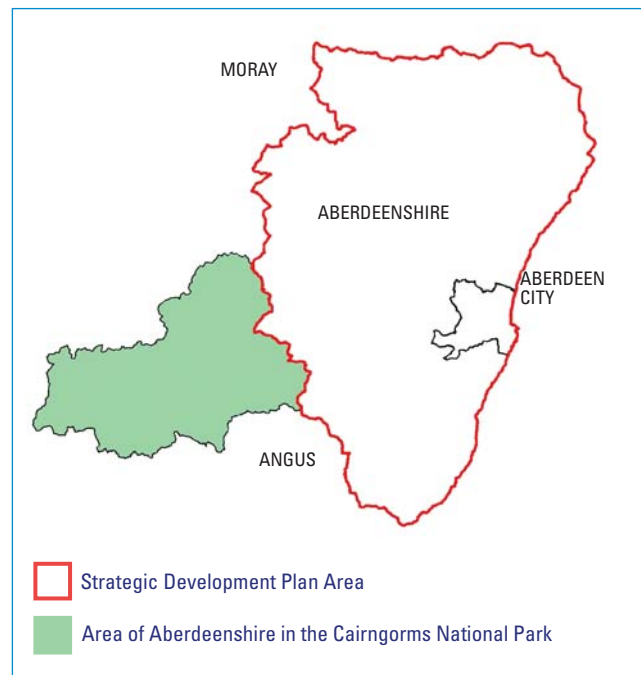

Other guidance on a specific planning topic may be prepared and become part of the development plan; this is called supplementary guidance.

Current development plan

From 1 April 2010, the development plan for the area is made up of the Aberdeen City and Shire Structure Plan (2009), the Aberdeenshire Local Plan (2006) and the Aberdeen City Local Plan (2008).

We are now monitoring and putting the structure plan into practice, as well as preparing supplementary planning guidance on waste. Aberdeen City and Aberdeenshire councils are preparing local development plans which will be consistent with the structure plan.

What is a development plan scheme?

Under the Planning etc (Scotland) Act 2006, all strategic development planning authorities must prepare development plan schemes. The scheme sets out our programme for preparing and reviewing our strategic development plan and what is likely to be involved at each stage. It also includes a participation statement, saying who we will consult on the plan and when and how this will take place, as well as our proposals for involving the public in preparing the plan.

As this is the first time we have been through the new strategic development plan process, some of the times for each stage in the timetable may need to be changed during the preparation process. However, as the scheme will be regularly monitored and reviewed (at least every year) any time changes can be dealt with quickly.

This development plan scheme only covers the strategic part of the development plan. Aberdeen City and Aberdeenshire councils have written their own development plan schemes to prepare local development plans and you can find more information on these from both councils.

The strategic development plan

The strategic development plan will be a short document which will contain a clear vision and spatial strategy for development over a period of at least 20 years. It will target important spatial issues and will focus on delivery and results. It will also affect decisions about strategic infrastructure investment.

Once it has been approved by Scottish Ministers, the strategic development plan will replace the Aberdeen City and Shire Structure Plan (2009).

Strategic environmental assessment

Under the Environmental Assessment (Scotland) Act 2005, the strategic development plan must include strategic environmental assessment. This aims to make sure that we take environmental issues as seriously as economic and social issues when preparing the strategic development plan. We will do this in a way that reflects the level of detail in the plan itself.

Project plan

Scottish Government policy is that the development plan scheme should focus on what we need to do to make sure that an up-to-date development plan is in place as quickly as possible.

It is important that the timetable for preparing the strategic development plan recognises the work of the two councils in preparing their local development plans. We will also make sure other regional plans and strategies, such as the regional transport strategy and the economic action programme, are in line with the strategic development plan.

The Planning etc (Scotland) Act 2006 suggests that, as the structure plan was approved in 2009, a proposed strategic development plan should be sent to Scottish Ministers by the end of 2013. However, the proposal set out below would see a strategic development plan sent to Scottish Ministers by the end of 2012, and approved by them by the end of 2013.

There are a number of stages in the process of preparing the strategic development plan, and there are certain documents which we must prepare. We show these and a timescale we aim to work to, in figure 2, below.

Period	Description	Comments
April 2010	We will publish the development plan scheme 2010/2011.	This will be sent to various groups and be available from all local libraries and our website.
	We will prepare the main issues report which takes into account any research and studies done, as well as the monitoring statement.	We will prepare supporting documents and carry out research and studies. This will include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • a housing need and demand assessment; • a monitoring statement; • a retail study; • a transport assessment; • a climate-change study; • a draft action programme; • an equalities and human rights impact assessment; • a habitats regulations assessment; and • a strategic environmental assessment scoping report and interim environmental report. We will speak to stakeholders (including the key agencies) about the plan, the issues we need to discuss and the options we have. We will take these discussions into account when preparing the main issues report.
May 2011	We will publish the main issues report and related documents.	This is followed by a 12-week consultation period and a review of the responses.
	We will prepare the proposed plan.	We will update the various assessments and prepare a proposed action programme.
April 2012	We will publish the proposed strategic development plan.	This will include the strategic environmental assessment, habitats regulations assessment, equalities and human rights impact assessment and proposed action programme. This is followed by a formal consultation period (12 weeks).
	We will look at responses made during the consultation period.	This will focus on identifying the issues raised during the consultation and responding to them.

Period	Description	Comments
December 2012	We will send our proposed strategic development plan to Scottish Ministers.	This will include our proposed action programme, report of conformity with the participation statement and the issues raised in representations and how we have taken them into account.
	Examination of proposed strategic development plan by Scottish Ministers.	The examination of the plan will be carried out by the Scottish Government Directorate of Planning and Environmental Appeals.
December 2013	Our strategic development plan will be approved by Scottish Ministers.	We will publish the action programme within three months of the plan being approved.

Participation Statement

We want the strategic development plan to be prepared in an open way which recognises the contribution different people and groups can make. We need to involve people in the plan preparation process in ways tailored to the needs of each group. The five main groups are:

- councillors;
- key agencies (Scottish Natural Heritage, Scottish Environmental Protection Agency, Scottish Water, Scottish Enterprise, Nestrans and NHS Grampian);
- public-and private-sector stakeholders (groups with a particular interest in our work);
- community councils; and
- the general public.

Period	Which part of the plan?	Who is involved?	How?
March 2010 and every year after that	The development plan scheme		We will publish it on the strategic development planning authority website, send an email to everyone registered on our database and send copies to the Scottish Ministers, key agencies, community councils and councillors. You will be able to get a copy from all local libraries and the address below.
From April 2010 to May 2011	We will prepare the main issues report	Councillors, community councils, key agencies, stakeholders and the general public All of our contacts Councillors, community councils, key agencies and stakeholders	Councillors and community councils - We will speak to both local councils and community councils in 2010 about what we are doing and how they can get involved in preparing the strategic development plan. Key agencies - We will encourage the involvement of key agencies, as well as Transport Scotland and Historic Scotland. This will mean joint as well as individual meetings and talks, focused on preparing the monitoring statement, identifying issues and developing options. Stakeholders – We will involve relevant stakeholders (including key agencies) when we prepare the various studies needed for the main issues report. All - We will organise a public-awareness campaign and will provide information leaflets to help you get involved with identifying issues and developing options. We will send a copy of the development plan scheme for 2011/2012 to all our contacts so they can get involved with the consultation on the main issues report at least one month before it starts. We will keep our website up-to-date.
From May 2010 to August 2011	We will speak to you about the main issues report	All of our contacts	We will send copies to all of our contacts and we will use press notices and press releases to reach everyone else. We will organise sessions in Aberdeen and Aberdeenshire so you can get involved. We will ask for comments by post, fax, email or on our website.

From August 2011 to April 2012	We will prepare the proposed plan	Councillors, community councils, key agencies and stakeholders	We will speak to identified groups about particular issues when preparing the proposed plan.
From April 2012 to July 2012	We will speak to you about the proposed plan	All of our contacts	We will send copies to all of our contacts and we will use press notices and press releases to reach the wider public. We will ask for comments by post, fax, email or on our website.
From December 2012	We will send the proposed strategic development plan to Scottish Ministers	All of our contacts	We will advertise in the newspapers, tell everyone registered on our database and publish all the information on our website.

Keeping you informed

We will keep you up-to-date about what we are doing and all opportunities for you to get involved.

We have created a new database of contacts which we will keep up-to-date for key agencies, councillors and community councils, although other groups and individuals will be responsible for telling us about any changes to their contact details.

We will let all people with an interest in our work know about important stages of the process. The internet allows us to provide regular updates and we will send an email to everyone who registers their email address with us on our website.

We will send all press releases to every local newspaper (as well as some national media organisations) and put them on our website.

How we will work

Being open and responsible for what we do

We will prepare the strategic development plan in a clear and open way. We will make all relevant information available on our website and our progress will be monitored. We will produce a conformity report along with the proposed plan which shows how much we have kept to the commitments we made in the development plan scheme.

Plain English

We will try to make sure all our documents are as easy to understand as possible. Not all the documents we produce will meet the Plain English Campaign's 'Crystal Mark' standard, but we will check what we produce to make sure that our information is at the right level for the audience.

Equalities and human rights

The Planning etc (Scotland) Act 2006 requires us to encourage equal opportunities. As part of our commitment to this, we will carry out an equalities and human rights impact assessment of the main issues report and proposed plan. We will make every effort to make sure that event venues are accessible to all and will provide documents in other formats or languages if needed. We will also provide audio versions of the main issues report and the proposed plan.

Environmental responsibility

Under the Planning etc (Scotland) Act 2006, we must contribute to sustainable development. This will mean thinking about the environmental, social and economic effect (both locally and worldwide) of what we do and the strategic development plan we prepare. Our staff will use public transport where possible, and we will try to reduce the environmental effect of our work.

Monitoring and review

We will check this development plan scheme regularly through the year, and we will update it every year. We will publish the third development plan scheme before April 2011.
